Thanks to a new, temporary roommate with more time (and CPU resources) than myself, the library of available media on my MythTV box has been exponentially growing...

Chad, as he likes to be called, has been persistently archiving an entire (extensive) collection of DVDs in the common DivX/XviD format(s) using the popular AutoGK batch processing application. Not all of the movies are up to my standards for quality conversion(s), but the kinks are slowly working themselves out. In the near future, I'd like to post a short article or tutorial on how to utilize this user-friendly application so everyone accessing the MythTV box can share their own collections. Maybe Chad will assist in a write up...
